The paradox is that a godly life can be so only if it is independent of the existence of God. We are each our own gatekeeper Do we behave in a certain way in our lives, simply as an economic 'hedge,' just in case God exists and we do not want to risk eternal damnation? How would you behave if no one could discover what you have done?

The most well-known version of the omnipotence paradox is the so-called paradox of the stone: "Could God create a stone so heavy that even He could not lift it?" [4] This phrasing of the omnipotence paradox is vulnerable to objections based on the physical nature of gravity , such as how the weight of an object depends on what the local gravitational field is.

The Kingdom Paradox ... Whether the church suffers or prospers, it is all ultimately to the glory of God. But there is more to it than this. God told Paul that He wanted to keep Paul weak, because "My power is made perfect in weakness" (2 Corinthians 12:9). Paul's weakness and suffering kept him dependent on God, and became a channel for ...
